INTERSESSION COURSES

The following Intersession courses are considered Spring courses for purposes of tuition and computing Spring grade point averages. However, the credits will not count as part of your Spring course load for purposes of credit hour limitations. If registering for an intersession course will put you over your maximum credit limit, please contact Dean Sowle so that your maximum credit limit can be adjusted in the registration system.

Prof. Erickson and faculty

STRATEGIC PROBLEM-SOLVING AND THE LAW (3 credits)

Profs. Johnson and Baker

Pass/fail only. This course will immerse students in complex, contemporary legal problems that demand creative, sophisticated analysis and prompt action. Working entirely in groups, students will delve into different subject areas, including employment relationships, environmental law, human rights and relational contracts. Each of the four problems that we work on will include intensive, practical research training; in particular, the course will be covering free, practice-related research, empirical data research, government document research, international law and business research. The course aims to simulate decision-making challenges that you often don't face in law school, but frequently face in the real world. Students will produce several kinds of written work product, including client letters, informal inter-agency memos, corporate policy papers, and negotiation outlines. Students will also give oral group presentations to a "client," a "commissioner," and an "executive board." You will be expected to be available at school from 8:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. each day except Friday (when we will end by 4 pm), and there will be additional work to be done at home in the evening and over the weekend prior to the beginning of class.
